In the transition between Windows 10 builds, Microsoft seemingly made a small mistake. I'm running the Insider version of Windows 10 with the build 17713 and I don't see the Get Office app, only My Office. However, a dozen user reports state that they see both My Office and Get Office apps just after the fresh system installation.

Windows 10 is a great operating system and it comes with a pack of useful features, one of them being the calendar app. While the native Windows 10 calendar serves its purpose well, some of us may want more horsepower with the calendar app. Some may want a calendar app with more customization options and extra features. Others may want it simpler, perhaps with striking looks and a fancy live tile.
